Senate and House Proceedings To-Day. The Sundry Civil Bill .- $2,000 a Year for Mrs. Fremont,

In the Senate this morning, after some minor business, the resolution of debate to five misutes to each Senator on amendments to Appropriation bills was laid aside without action.

The consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill was resumed, the pending question belog the irrigation provise in the like bill of October 2, 1888, and Mr. Regan continued his speech began yesterday against the ameridment and in favor of the irrigation scheme initiated by that act. tinted by that act.

In the House,

In the House this morning Mr. Cannon, from the Committee on Rules, reported a resolution providing for immediate consideration of the "Original Package" bill, the previous question to be ordered on Monday Immediately after the reading of the journal; that the Bankruptey III be then taken up, the previous uestion to be considered as ordered on Wednesday after the reading of the

Mr. Breckinridge of Kentucky raised the question of consideration, but the House decided by a vote of 115 to 55 to consider the resolution, Mr. McMillin of Tennessee objected to the method of procedure. The House of Representatives should govern itself and not be governed by the Committee on Rules.

Mr. Outhwaite of Ohio said that he favored the Bankruptcy bill, as reported, but, if an attempt was made to rush it through the House, he would have to oppose its passage.

Mr. Taylor of Ohio saked how the gentleman under oath could vote against a bill which he favored simply because he was offended.

Mr. Outhwaite replied that he would oppose it because there might be other Representatives who had not given it a careful consideration.

After further discussion, at the suggestion of Mr. Adams of Hilnois, the resolution was modified so as to provide that appropriation bills shall not futerfere with the two bills, and it was then adopted.

The Original Package bill was taken up and C. B. Taylor advocated it.

District in Congress,

In the Senate the resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Gibson, directing the Secretary of War to report as to the cost of an avenue connecting the reservation of the Washington Monument with Columbia (Rock Creek) Park and the Soldlers' Home, was taken up.
Mr. Dawes asked, sarcastically, whether the intention was to give the use of the proposed avenue to the Penn-sylvania Railroad Company. Mr. Gibson replied that one of his purposes in offering the resolution was prevent the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from getting possession of the avenue.

The resolution was then agreed to. The President transmitted to the Senate to day the report of the Board of Sanitary Commissioners on the subject of a system of sewerage in the District. Mr. Faulkner to day reported favorably Senate bill 4119, granting the right of way to the Metropolitan Southern Railroad Company through the property of the United States in Montgomery County, Md., amending it to accord with the years of the War. to accord with the views of the War Department.

Anxious to Personalty Inspect the Roses, July 18 - It is quite true that

Leo XIII went out of the precincts of the Vatienc on Tuesday and drove through the public streets. The Pope, desiring to see for himself, in its present stage of development, the status of St. Thomas Aquinas, which is destined to adorn the Vallean library, quietly went to the studio of the sculptor Aureli, who is engaged on the work, and satisfied himself by looking at it. In returning, he happened to pass near a body of Italian guards, and, as a matter of course, the soldiers presented arms, as the Italian law prescribes that they shall do, as a mark of respect to the Pope, and as a sign that the King

THE BAY OF FUNDY, OR.

A Frace Against Which the Atlantic Ocean Has a Gradge

The Bay of Fundy, says the Portland Advertiser, forms a cul de sec at which the Atlantic Ocean seems to have taken a spite, and at regular , intervals pours in its waters viciously and with intent to do all possible harm. Take, for in-stance, the harbor of St. John. In most parts of the world a tide of from six to ten feet is quite sufficient to satisfy all reasonable demands. In St. John Har-bor the tide rises twenty-one feet on an ordinary day, and occasionally varies the monotony by pushing the mark up three or four feet, as the humor seizes it. and I was never struck so much with anything in my life as with this al-vance and receding of the waters.

I have described the narrow garge through which the St. John River is forced into the Bay of Fundy. At low tide, where the water dreps into the bay there is a fall of some ten feet, the channel being very rough and totally impassable for vessels of any description. At high water the fall is the other way, the bay falling into the river. This is the first time that I have ever seen a river with the water flowing from its mouth toward its source, and this occurs every day in the St. John.

One good effect of this tide is this, that when it is half up or half down the river is level with the harbor and, then the immense number of timber barges and other craft which have gathered in the river while waiting for the rise and fall are able to run nicely and easily out into the harbor. St. John, be it understood, is a great port for shipping. At any day you can see a dozen of the largest occan-going vessels loading deals for different parts of the world. This timber mainly comes down the

St. John River.

I saw the tide come in around the headland at the Minas basin, and it is a sight worth going to see. The head of the advancing tide is called a "bore." If you can imagine a straight wall of water eight or ten feet high, curing over at the top, advancing upon you at the rate of ten miles per hour, you can get an idea of what a "bore" is and what a turn of the tide means. At the Minas basin this wall of water comes tearing around the headland like an expres train, and the man who was down on the flat sands of the bay at this time stood a remarkably good chance of never leaving the sands alive. If he got a good start of the "bore" he might escape, but if not he would be drowned.

Just visible through these at the back were broad loops of jet-black hair, stiff and solid as polished chony, and decorated with artificial pink roses. Her principal vestment was a long tunic, whose foundation fabric of crimson satin was scarcely discernible, and its embroidery of gold. A corner turned back, lined with emerald satin, revealed an under-skirt paneled in brilliant rod and blue silk this also profusely trimmed with gold embroidery. It appears that on last Thursday evening, while promenading after the hop, young Goodman told her he was to return East on June 1 unless she accepted him. Miss Price replied that he could have her on one condition—beat her swimming to the raft and back. The raft is anchored several rods from the shore, and at high tide is at good swimming distance. The challenge was accepted at once, and the next day at 11, high tide, set for the trial. Word went around among their friends, and many wagers of boxes of candy, gloves, etc., were made on Miss Price winning. Goodman took up a number of bets, as his gentlemen friends were backing his Excitement ran high when the hour of contest came. Miss Price tooked very pretty, with blue and white striped bathing suit. Goodman came out with a regular Yale-blue suit on, and escorted his fair adversary to the edge of the water. Mr. Beeler acted as referee. The signal given, both rushed into the water and struck out, Miss Price using the overhand stroke and Goodman the trog style. As Miss Price climbed up on the raft first the large crowd of friends yelled lustliy and waved their hats and handkerchiefs.

Miss Price rested until Goodman reached the raft, when she was seen to stand erect, place her hands together in front and dive. As she came up she was seen to turn on her back and raise one hand. Goodman immediately sprang into the water and towed her back to the raft. Their friends on shore became greatly worried lest she had met with an accident. She was seen to re-move the stocking from her left foot, which Goodman rubbed vigorously for twenty minutes. She had a cramp Again they both entered the water.
